

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Administration for Children and Families
Office of Family Assistance

www.fatherhood.gov

National Responsible Fatherhood Clearinghouse Information, Resources, and Technical Assistance

A service of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families (ACF), Office of Family Assistance (OFA), the National Responsible Fatherhood Clearinghouse (NRFC) collects and makes available information that promotes and supports the responsible fatherhood field, and specifically supports ACF-funded Promoting Responsible Fatherhood grantees. NRFC is also an essential resource for others to learn more about the importance of responsible fatherhood and fatherhood issues.

NRFC presents information about priorities, strategies, trends, research findings, promising practices, and emerging lessons from the field and helps key audiences translate the information into policies and actions that make a difference for fathers, children, families, and communities.

Visit the NRFC website (www.fatherhood.gov) for more details about:

- Television, radio, print, outdoor, and flash ads from NRFC's Take Time to Be a Dad Today national media campaign to raise awareness about father involvement and promote responsible fatherhood
- Resources and technical assistance specially designed to help Promoting Responsible Fatherhood grantees sustain, improve, and evaluate the quality of their OFA-funded demonstration programs
- Spotlight on Dads brochures to download
- Tips to help fathers and families become more involved with their children
- Materials from the NRFC monthly webinar series
- E-newsletter and e-mail updates
- Searchable online library
- Events calendar
- Resources for community partners, policymakers, and researchers
- Topics & Tools that address related issues such as domestic violence, incarceration and reentry, and funding opportunities

Take Time to Be a Dad Today